

Trevechoes

Volume 56 Issue 6

OFFICIAL STUDENT PUBLICATION OF TEVECCA NAZARENE UNIVERSITY

January 23, 2003

In this issue...

Opinion.....2

-Developmental math program doesn't add up
-Who's social life?

Campus News.....3

-Vienna Choir Boys come to town
-TNU presents Friday Night Live

Sports.....6

-Lady Trojan basketball owns 12 game home winning streak
-Men's basketball team heads into conference play
-Fall sports wrap up

The Back Page.....8

TNU Sports Scores

Men's Basketball (10-5)

Jan. 3-4 Trojan Boosters Endowment Classic

1-3-03
TNU 89
Shorter College 69

1-4-03
TNU 65
Olivet Nazarene 67

1-7-03
TNU 100
Dillard University 73

1-11-03
TNU 72
Lambuth University 67

1-18-03
TNU 69
Martin Methodist 57

Women's Basketball (14-2)

1-3-03
TNU 86
Flagler College 67

1-4-03
TNU 80
Edward Waters College 64

1-9-03
TNU 80
Blue Mountain College 68

1-11-03
TNU 70
Lyon College 73

1-18-03
TNU 67
Martin Methodist 61

TNU welcomes M3 Conference

by Lori Peach

An exciting event for the Church of the Nazarene will be hosted at Opryland Hotel and Convention Center. February 17-19 the Mid-Quadrennial Conference on Missions and Evangelism "Millennium Three" is coming to town.

The conference is not just for pastors and ministers. Three days of informative workshops and inspiring worship services with some well-known speakers and musicians are expected.

Dr. Rick Rigsby, who led an unforgettable, enthusiastic sermon at the Nazarene Youth Congress in 1999 in Toronto, Canada, will be the guest speaker on Tuesday night. Other featured speakers include:

Sam Vassel, pastor of Bronx Bethany Church of the Nazarene in New York City, NY.

Lee Strobel, author of the best selling The Case for Christ, The Case for Faith, and Inside the Mind of Unchurched Harry and Mary.

Thom Rainer, Founder and President of the Rainer Church Consulting Group

College students and people of all ages will gather in Nashville in February for this highly anticipated event and author or co-author of twelve books in the church.

Marilyn Laszlo, a former missionary to the Sepik Iwam people of Papua New Guinea for 23 years and current national speaker for Wycliffe U.S.A.

Leonard Sweet, a foremost expert in church relations in a post-modern age, a historian of American culture, church futurist, and a preacher and writer.

Special music groups will also be performing for the conference including the six-time Dove gospel music group, the Martins, two-time Grammy Award nominee, Wintley Phipps, and the up and coming Christian music group MJK, who have long been a part of the Trevecca Community.

MJK and Dr. Rick Rigsby are two of many featured in the upcoming conference.

Not only will there be worship services, but the days will be filled with a large variety of different workshops and exhibits that are sure to meet the needs of everyone. The topics of the workshops range from Communication, Compassion Evangelism, and

Dr. Reed meets the Milly Mobile

by Jan Rothman

Social Life has done it yet again. In honor of Trevecca President, Millard Reed, Trevecca student Eli Hamilton was commissioned to paint an old white Chevette that once sat in Benson Parking Lot.

Lovingly termed the "Milly Mobile", the newly painted car made its debut at the 2002 Trevecca Homecoming Parade as the Social Life float driven by Vice President of Social Life David Graham.

The car had graced the Benson lot for quite some time until David Graham requested campus security to put a thirty day notice on the car. When no one else claimed ownership of the continued on page four...

The Milly Mobile, TNU Social Life's Car Mascot, meets its inspiration in Dr. Millard Reed

Letters to the Editor

Volume 56 Issue 6

Trevechoes

January 23, 2003

Aleks program doesn't add up

by Jenni Cox

I should probably begin this article stating with a mixture of pride and shame "I AM NOT GOOD IN MATH".

There. I've said it. The fact of the matter is, that as an inexperienced and impressionable child, mathematics held no excitement and intrigue for me. However, if you asked me to pump out a five page paper on how the roles of society have been portrayed throughout literature, I'm your girl. But alas, that isn't going to help me figure out how to balance my checkbook.

So, as you can probably guess, by the ripe young age of nine, I decided that math was completely pointless and therefore I was no longer going to bother myself with it.

Not only that, but I also concluded that I hated math with every passion and fiber within my being. And it seems that I am not the only student to come to this conclusion.

According to the U.S. Secretary of Education Terrel Bell, "In mathematics, verification has come primarily from national and international assessments showing that U.S. students lack necessary skills for solving multi-step problems required to function in the context of everyday situations and work settings."

The truth is that many stu-

When I enrolled as a bright-eyed, innocent freshman, I signed up for classes and was placed, due to my ACT score, in Developmenmaking sure every student understood the material.

This is NOT the case. Imagine my surprise, when showing up for my first day of math class, armed with my trusty calculator and number 2 pencil in hand, I found myself in a computer lab.

I thought maybe, since I was only a freshman, that when I had asked for directions to class the upperclassman would think it would be hilarious to give me the wrong ones and send me to the computer lab. My professor informed me that I was indeed, in the correct classroom and that the Developmental Math was not a course taught by a professor, but instead a course taught by a computer.

The tutorial used to teach Developmental Math here at Trevecca is through the Internet. So I logged in to <http://www.highed.aleks.com> to take the opening tutorial, the one that would place me in the program based on my level of skill and knowledge.

It sounded relatively easy, that is, until I started the math part. Recall with me, if you will, the fact that I have already stated "I AM NOT GOOD IN MATH".

Now fast forward to the here and now. I am currently still enrolled in Developmental Math, going on my fourth semester, and I am beyond frustrated. Actually, frustrated doesn't even begin to cover it. I have had to enroll in the same class for two years straight and have had to pay for it every time.

I've wasted time repeating this course, when I could be using the credit hours to be taking classes that actually

continued on page 3...

"The problem is that the tutorial skips some steps in explaining problems, leaving the confused student trying to figure out what is going on..."

dents, in high school as well as college, have been taught virtually no mathematical skills.

Well now that I am older and wiser, I realize, looking back on my decision, that it wasn't a very good one. So to make a long story short, I struggled in math throughout school, only pulling my weight around enough to scrounge up a C or two.

Even on the math portion of the ACT I struggled, figuring that only by a miraculous act of God would I pass. When all was said and done and the dust had cleared, I had received an 18.

Needless to say, I threw myself a party, thrilled that I at least had made a score that was close to my age!

tal Math 0950. Upon checking out the TNU Student Handbook (which I know everyone reads on a daily basis) the course was described as follows in a direct quote from the 2001-2002 edition:

"Designed to prepare students for college level mathematics. Material will encompass basic skills and elementary algebra, depending on the needs of the students. Institutional credit but no credit toward graduation."

Now while the TNU Student Handbook is incredibly helpful, it does not state how the class will be taught. I assumed, since it was a remedial course, that it would most likely be taught out of a high school algebra book, taking it slowly but surely,

Is there a pressing issue or thought provoking opinion you wish to voice? Write a letter to the editor at:

Trevechoes

333 Murfreesboro Road
Nashville, TN 37210
(615) 259-7159

anonymous letters will not be printed.

Who's Social Life is it?

by Quintaria Brunson

After attending this school for two years, I have become quite perturbed by the obvious partitions here at Trevecca. I am compelled to speak out about one of the non-inclusive episodes that occur on this campus daily.

The planning of student activities by S.G.A. and Social Life members is, by far, not the collaboration of ideas it should be. The picture of Trevecca's social planning is rather ludicrous. A small group of simple-minded individuals sit on the Acropolis and plan unscrupulous events for us mortals. I have sat quietly long enough while this repetition of events has occurred, and it is time for this dysfunctional council to either get with the program or get ran over.

The choice is yours. Frankly speaking, these bootleg, childish, half-cocked activities are simply absurd.

"The activities do not interest me. They are very juvenile because of all the restrictions placed on us by the school," stated Trevecca student David Janosik.

"The activities planned by S.G.A. are of interest to only S.G.A." said Nicole Davis, another student here at Trevecca.

Those parties responsible for planning student events have an obligation to encompass the ideas of the overall student body, and that has not been achieved nor attempted.

"The college experience is for all, not a select few..."

All too many students feel their opinions are uninvited, unwelcomed, and unwanted. The negligence to acknowledge a variety of ideas has caused a rift among our students here.

The absence of consideration for athletes, fellow students, and minorities have mounted into enormous amounts of complaints.

Lynnette Greer, a Trevecca athlete, stated "Most activities planned conflict with sports scheduling, so I cannot attend them."

"The Social Life and S.G.A. activities are geared towards white students, and minority opinions are not considered. If there are any culturally diverse events, they are only sponsored by the Cultural Club." David Burger said.

Nate Knight stated, "Some activities are all right, but most are pointless."

In a nutshell, S.G.A. and Social Lifers, grow up, get interesting, and please suppress the looks of repulsion when suggestions are made by unsatisfied students. Bottom Line: If you did not learn to appreciate others at home, you will learn now. The college experience is for all, not a select few, so embrace all when planning events for students here at Trevecca.

Campus News

page 3

Trevechoes

Volume 56 Issue 6

January 23, 2003

Vienna Choir Boys to visit Trevecca

by Miranda Sneed

For approximately the past five hundred years, the Vienna Choir Boys have been touring the world as one of the most respected musical groups in history.

Now, on Thursday, January 23rd, 2003, Trevecca Community Church has the honor of hosting this world-renowned group.

Half a millennium ago, upon the transfer of his court from Innsbruck to Vienna, Hapsburg Emperor Maximilian I demanded that there always be six boys among his personal court musicians. Historians have since settled on the year 1498 as the official founding date of the group the world has come to know simply as the Vienna Choir Boys.

For the next four hundred years, the boys were commissioned to sing exclusively for the Hapsburg dynasty's court at events such as masses, private concerts, and other state occasions.

After the breakdown of the Hapsburg Empire in 1918, the boys' choir survived because of the work of Dean of the Imperial Chapel, Josef Schnitt.

In its entirety, the choir consists of about one hundred choristers between the ages of ten and fourteen.

This group is then divided into four touring choirs, one of whom Trevecca will be pleased to present this Thursday.

The Vienna Choir Boys sings primarily on the continent of Europe, however they are frequent guests in Asia and Australia, as well

continued on page 4...

The Vienna Choir Boys will come to Trevecca on Thursday, January 23, 2003

Students can't count on developmental math program

continued from page 2

count towards my graduation.

As it is, I am already over six credit hours short of where I should actually be. And as bad as the situation may seem, it gets worse. I didn't actually think it could, but it does.

While I was at home during Christmas break, I received a lovely letter from Trevecca, informing me that I was being placed on academic suspension due to my failure to complete Developmental Math. So I returned to TNU this semester, not even knowing if I was returning to stay, or if I would be forced to leave.

Now, for those of you unfamiliar to the suspension process, let me shed some insight on the subject. If you are suspended, you must first write a letter of appeal to the Academic Appeal Committee. Then this committee gets together to review your case, and they decide whether or not the suspension will be lifted. If it is, hooray. If not, then you must meet the requirements in order to re-enroll for the semester.

The requirements placed upon me were to take a final ALEKS assessment and pass it with a minimum of 75%.

If that did not happen, I would have to leave TNU and wait to re-enroll for the Fall 2003 semester.

Enter in here the problems with the ALEKS math tutorial. The problem is that the tutorial skips some steps in explaining problems, leaving the confused student (that would be me) trying to figure out what is going on and how the answer was reached. Thankfully, I had reached 70% before Christmas, so at least I had a sporting chance to finish.

Also note that there is a deadline to register for classes (as in I can't take forever or else I would be past the deadline for enrollment).

Fast forward to Monday, January 13, 2003. The following is a re-telling of a day in the life of me:

9:00 AM: zzzzzzzzzzz (did you actually think I would be awake?!?!)

10:30 AM: getting ready for test by studying a lot of numbers.

11:00 AM: sneaking into the café because if they are scanning cards I will not be able to get any food because I have STILL not been able to register.

11:02 AM: safely eating in the café (they are still clicking!)

11:45 AM: leaving café to study more.

12:30 PM: still studying and praying fervently to retain at least the ability to count higher than five...

1:00 PM: taking final ALEKS exam.

2:30 PM: finishing ALEKS exam and realizing that I now have a 74% instead of a 75%.

2:32 PM: screaming in agony and despair.

2:34 PM: still screaming

2:40 PM: make an appointment to take another assessment in a half hour to give me time to calm down (supposedly I am an alarming shade of puce).

3:10 PM: checking school e-mail

3:11 PM: realize that the math professor that I was supposed to have for Developmental Math (if I was enrolled, but I am still not), had the nerve to e-mail me and tell me that I have already missed class twice and that if I didn't go to class I would be in trouble...

3:13 PM: throwing backpack across the room because I can't believe that this professor had the nerve to e-mail when I am only ONE STUPID POINT AWAY from finishing.

3:18 PM: taking another final ALEKS exam

4:00 PM: finishing ALEKS

exam

4:01 PM: realizing that I now have a 76% and I am done with math

4:02 PM: WOO-HOO!!!!!!

4:15 PM: re-enrolling at good old TNU!

So I was finally able to pass my ALEKS final and was able to re-enroll here at TNU. I will never again have to log onto a computer and figure out percentages and divide fractions.

But it is still my firm belief the remedial program here at TNU needs to be re-evaluated for the sake of all those poor innocent, incoming freshman who show up at computer labs on their first day and have to struggle with all the multiplying and converting and dividing and other icky math terms that I care not to know about for the rest of forever (that is, until I have to take Concepts of Math and Financial Stewardship...ugh).

Campus News

Volume 56 Issue 6

Treveccoes

January 23, 2003

Upcoming events at TNU

Jan. 23- Thursday
L.E.A.D. 10:30AM
Women's Basketball
@ Union University
6PM
Men's Basketball
@ Union University
8PM
Vienna Choir Boys
Concert @ TCC
7:30PM

Jan. 24- Friday
Friday Night Live 9 PM

Jan. 25- Saturday
Women's Basketball
vs. Freed-Hardeman
University 2 PM
Men's Basketball
vs. Freed-Hardeman
University 4 PM

Jan. 27- Monday
Men's Basketball
vs. Cumberland University 7 PM

Jan. 28-30
All-School Spring
Revival

Jan. 30- Thursday
Women's Basketball
@ Brescia University
7PM

Feb. 1- Saturday
Women's Basketball
vs. Lyon College 2 PM
Men's Basketball
vs. Lyon College 4 PM

Feb. 3- Monday
Women's Basketball
vs. Blue Mountain
College 7 PM

Feb. 6- Thursday
L.E.A.D. 10:30 AM
Women's Basketball
@ Lee University 5 PM
Men's Basketball
@ Lee University 7 PM

Social Life's Milly Mobile keeps rolling

...continued from page one

old car, Social Life put their mark on it making it the first ever car owned by Trevecca Social Life.

The Milly Mobile has been seen sitting in various places around campus proudly sporting the face of Trevecca's own Dr. Millard Reed.

Last semester, the Milly

Mobile sat in front of Moore Gymnasium for the State Farm Nazarene Invitational Tournament where the Lady Trojans basketball team defeated three different Nazarene colleges including Olivet Nazarene University Point Loma Nazarene University, and MidAmerica Nazarene University.

The car, (seen in picture with Dr. Millard Reed on the front page) was originally white, but once Social Life Committee member and Trevecca student Eli Hamilton got control of the car, the old Chavette was painted purple with gold rims and bumpers with a large portrait of President Reed's face painted on the hood.

Freshman Alaina McKinney had this to say about the car, "I think it's great and really funny. They did a good job."

Brandi Byler, also a freshman at Trevecca, said, "I think it's ghetto and that's all I have to say about that."

President Reed laughed when asked to take a picture with the car, but was more than willing to participate.

TNU anticipates M3 Conference

...continued from page one

Multicultural Ministries to Revivalism, Sunday School, and The Hidden Mission Field. This is only a small portion of the many topics that will be covered. Overall, 160 workshops will be offered.

Finally, on Tuesday evening, there will be a big pizza party for all college and career students attending the conference.

Many college students may think, "How is a poor college student like me going to be able to afford to attend this awesome event?" It's all free. To register, simply go to the Millennium Three website at www.m3conference.org and fill out a short registration page. The website may also be used to check out the schedule of events for the conference.

Coordinators of the conference are also looking for college students to volunteer to help in coordinating the event.

For more information on registering to be a participant or to sign up to help as a volunteer contact Sharisa Brown at (615) 248-7377.

Vienna Choir Boys keeps singing

...continued from page 3

as in North and South America.

The choir visits the United States annually and now include Trevecca in their tour of the U.S.

The Vienna Choir Boys

have a long tradition of excellence having worked with such celebrated musicians as Mozart, Schubert, and Haydn, among many others. The artistry of the choir is owed to Norbert Balatsch and Gerald Wirth.

As a private, non-profit organization, the choir funds itself primarily through concerts and recordings.

Tickets to see the Vienna Boys Choir at Trevecca Community Church of the Nazarene on Thursday, January 23 are available through the Office of Alumni Services which can be contacted at (615) 248-1350.

Since tickets are limited, advance purchase is encouraged. However, any remaining tickets will be sold at the door.

Krispy Kreme Doughnuts has extended their offer to Trevecca students for the spring semester. Present a valid TNU ID at the Krispy Kreme located at the corner of Nolensville Road and Thompson Lane and receive a dozen original glazed doughnuts free with the purchase of a dozen doughnuts.

Campus News

page 5

Trevechoes

Volume 56 Issue 6

January 23, 2003

Friday Night Live returns to TNU

by Billy Byler

For over four years the campus of Trevecca Nazarene University has enjoyed an annual improv performance by students and faculty members that takes comedy to a whole new level. Based on the hit television show Saturday Night Live, Trevecca Social Life presents Friday Night Live every year much to the elation of eager Trevecca students.

Skits ranging from Celebrity Jeopardy and Inspirational Talks from Matt Foley to the Crocodile Hunter and Brian Fellows have all become a part of the Friday Night Live festivities over the years.

This year, Friday Night Live approaches with the same intensity and anticipation.

Lead by Trevecca Social Life Vice President David Graham and Social Life Committee member Aaron Shaver, Friday Night Live will offer several new skits this year.

Skits this year will include a comical broadcast of the first ever baseball game, an inspirational talk from Matt Foley with a new cultural twist, Celebrity Jeopardy (Trevecca style), Weekend Update, and much more.

Over the years, Celebrity

Jeopardy and Weekend Update have been popular staples to the event.

Celebrity Jeopardy has boasted Trevecca students posing as such stars as Sean Connery and Burt Reynolds. This year, students will retire the famous faces and, instead, pose as familiar Trevecca faculty members.

Weekend Update, traditionally a favorite among Friday Night Live skits, will feature the latest happenings and news reports of Trevecca events, always with comical commentary following.

With an all-star cast of performers such as David Seamon, Aaron Shaver, Nate Owen, Natalie McMahon, Graham Hi, and much more, Friday Night Live looks to be a well-attended event with elevated expectations.

The date for the highly anticipated event is Friday, January 24 at 9 PM. Tickets will be sold at the door and are free with a S.L.A.P. card or two dollars without the card.

Traditionally, seats for the event are filled early so for best seating, the Social Life Committee suggests arriving at least fifteen minutes before showtime.

For more information on the event or to join the Social Life Committee contact Vice President of Social Life David Graham at 248-7772.

Internet class helps timid students

The Internet is has become an amazing resource for information about virtually any topic anyone might be interested in. However, many people find themselves apprehensive about what to do and where to go on the net. Others find themselves afraid of trusting a computer or the Internet for business purposes. Still many others worry about keeping personal information safe are or nervous about on-line scams.

The Tennessee Christian Medical Center is providing a class, free of charge, intended to educate people on the truth about Internet safety.

The Internet: Friend or Foe, is a free course being offered on Wednesday, January 29, 2003, beginning at 1:30 PM in Tennessee Christian's Resource Center. Participants will learn about such things as privacy and safety on the Internet and dispelling Internet rumors.

For more information or to register for the free class, call (615) 860-6600. Pre-registration is preferred, but last minute guests are always welcome. Tennessee Christian Medical Center is located off Old Hickory Boulevard and Larkin Springs Road in Madison, Tennessee.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

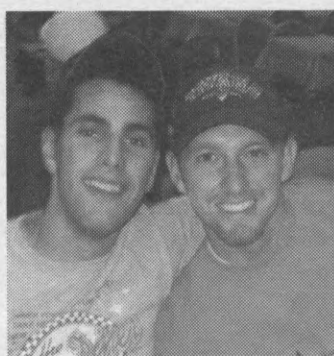

This is the section where students like you can speak out and give your opinion about some of life's important issues and maybe even some of the not-so-important ones. Trevecca students can say whatever they want. So, with that said, Trevechoes asks...

"Who would you like to see as a chapel speaker?"

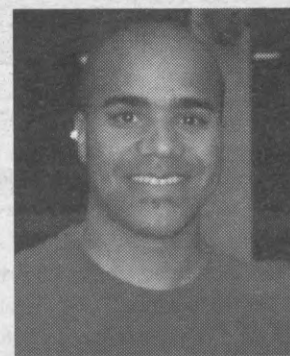

Freshman Kristi Gearhart

"Professor Buess, he's a cool guy. He'd be a good chapel speaker."

Jr. Joe Shrum and So. James Sparkman

"Aaron Reynolds would make a great chapel speaker"

Senior Terry Greene

"I want to see Lamar Courtney speak in chapel."

Upcoming events at TNU

Feb. 7- Friday
Phi Beta Lambda
Event 7:30 PM

Feb. 8- Saturday
Women's Basketball
vs. Berry College 2 PM
Men's Basketball
vs. Berry College 4 PM

Feb. 10- Monday
Women's Basketball
vs. Union University
6PM
Men's Basketball
vs. Union University
8PM

Feb. 11- Tuesday
College to Career Fair
@ TN State Fair
Grounds 11 AM- 5 PM

Feb. 13- Thursday
L.E.A.D. 10:30 AM
Women's Basketball
@ Cumberland University 6 PM
Men's Basketball
@ Cumberland University 8 PM

Feb. 14- Friday
Valentine's Day
Valentine's Banquet

Feb. 17-19
Millennium Three Conference

Feb. 17- Monday
President's Day

Feb. 20-22
TNU Drama Presents
"The Tempest" 7 PM

Feb. 20- Thursday
Women's Basketball
@ Freed-Hardeman
6PM
Men's Basketball
@ Freed-Hardeman
8pm

TNU Sports

Trevehoes

Volume 56 Issue 6

January 23, 2003

TNU

Sports Calendar

Jan. 23- Thursday
Women's Basketball
@ Union University
6 PM

Men's Basketball
@ Union University
8 PM

Jan. 25- Saturday
Women's Basketball
vs. Freed-Hardeman
University 2 PM
Men's Basketball
vs. Freed-Hardeman
University 4 PM

Jan. 27- Monday
Men's Basketball
vs. Cumberland University 7 PM

Jan. 30- Thursday
Women's Basketball
@ Brescia University
7 PM

Feb. 1- Saturday
Women's Basketball
vs. Lyon College 2 PM
Men's Basketball
vs. Lyon College 4 PM

Feb. 3- Monday
Women's Basketball
vs. Blue Mountain
College 7 PM

Feb. 6- Thursday
Women's Basketball
@ Lee University 5 PM
Men's Basketball
@ Lee University 7 PM

Feb. 8- Saturday
Women's Basketball
vs. Berry College 2 PM
Men's Basketball
vs. Berry College 4 PM

Feb. 10- Monday
Women's Basketball
vs. Union University
6 PM
Men's Basketball
vs. Union University
8 PM

Lady Trojans perfect at home

by Billy Byler

Dating back to last season, the Trevecca women's basketball team has won 12 games in a row at home. The confines of Moore Gymnasium on the campus of Trevecca have proven to be an uninviting place to play for opponents with its surrounding bleachers and intimidating home crowd.

As impressive as Moore Gymnasium may be, the Lady Trojans have had to earn their success this season on the road. Almost two months have elapsed since the Trevecca women's squad has played a home game.

After chalking up home wins against several top NAIA schools in the first half of the season including a huge, three point upset of #1 ranked Southern Nazarene University, the Lady Trojans embarked on a six game road trip which was extended to seven games after the home game against Cumberland University was postponed due to heavy snowfall.

After suffering a loss from TranSouth Conference opponent Lyon College, the Junior Audrey Leatherman has played a vital role in the Lady Trojans home winning streak.

Trevecca women's basketball team bounced back with a win against Martin Methodist College on Saturday evening in Trevecca's final game of their extended road trip. The game began as a defensive battle as both teams struggled shooting from the field early on. The Lady Trojans only shot 25.7% from the field in the first half, but thanks to their defense, Trevecca went into the locker room at half time deadlocked in a 28-28 tie.

In the second half, Trevecca found their rhythm once more as junior Lindsey Fly dropped in 21 points and 11 rebounds to lead the Lady Trojans to a 67-61 victory. Fly's stats were good enough for her 8th double-double of the season. Senior Jennifer Wilson added 17 points and was a perfect 4 for 4 from the free throw line while freshman Kristin Scoggins tallied 7 points and 4 steals in the winning effort.

The Lady Trojans improved to 14-2 on the season and 1-1 in TranSouth Conference play. Trevecca will next travel to Jackson, TN to face #2 Union University on Thursday, Jan 23 at 6pm.

Trevecca will finally return home to defend their 12 game home winning streak on Saturday, January 25 at noon against Freed-Hardeman University.

Falling into spring

by Kelsey Shockey

As fans look forward to this new spring season, I offer a moment to pause and reflect on the many accomplishments that TNU athletics have reached thus far.

With excitement and enthusiasm mounting toward the Lady Trojans strength on the court and the battle the men have in player eligibility, many achievements have gone unnoticed.

The volleyball team finished the fall season continuing a tradition of excellence under Head Coach Scott Jones.

The team began the season with a tournament championship win at the Asbury College Invitational and a second place finish at the Lee University Invitational while afterwards defeating their crosstown rival, NCAA Division I opponent Tennessee State University.

The team climbed the stats and received bids for being in the top 25 of the NAIA coaches poll.

Crissie Cunha, a 6'1" junior from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, was named Asbury Tournament MVP and placed on the All-Tournament team at the Lee University Invitational.

Freshman Laurel Markovich from Franklin, Tennessee was named the TranSouth Athletic Conference and Region XI setter of week and NAIA setter of the week as well as being named to the Asbury College Invitational All-Tournament team.

Katie Carter, a 6'0" senior also from Franklin, TN, provided a great amount of leadership for the team in continuing a level of strength and consistency. Carter was named to the All-Tournament team at the Asbury College Invitational and the Lee University Invitational.

The men's golf team continues their season this spring with five players after losing two players for various reasons.

The women's golf team also continues this spring with many expectations and the potential for a very successful finish.

The men's and women's soccer team took remarkable strides this past fall and continue to build upon this season during the spring.

The women's team, joined by new assistant coach Mark Champion, began to build a new foundation when six players did not return this season.

With five freshmen, including team MVP Casey Thornton, the squad began to take a new form under the leadership of captains Carolyn Pratt, junior, and Tawny Brown, senior.

During the match against Fisk University, the Lady Trojan set the records for highest scoring during a match with a 19-0 win.

Brown and teammate Tori Sanchez were named to the TranSouth Athletic All-Conference Team.

Sophomore Lauren Collins was named Most Inspirational player while Seniors Leah Herod and Tawny Brown received the Coach's award for

...continued on page 6

TNU Sports

page 7

Volume 56 Issue 6

Trevechoes

January 23, 2003

Trojans upset #6 Martin Methodist

by Billy Byler

Traveling down to Pulaski, Tennessee has never been a fun trip for the Trevecca men's basketball team. The past four years have resulted in four losses for the Trojans as they've taken the defeat from Martin Methodist College on the RedHawk's home floor consistently throughout the years. Last Saturday afternoon, however, the Trojans rewrote history.

With Martin Methodist College sporting a 10-2 overall record and a #6 ranking in the latest NAIA coaches poll, Martin Methodist came into the basketball game as huge favorites.

The Trojans, on the other hand, had a tough opening half of the season losing several players to ineligibility rules and playing a majority of their games with only eight players. Needless to say, Trevecca came into Martin Methodist College's gymnasium with much to prove and the term "underdog" as an understatement.

Someone forgot to tell the Trojans they were supposed to lose.

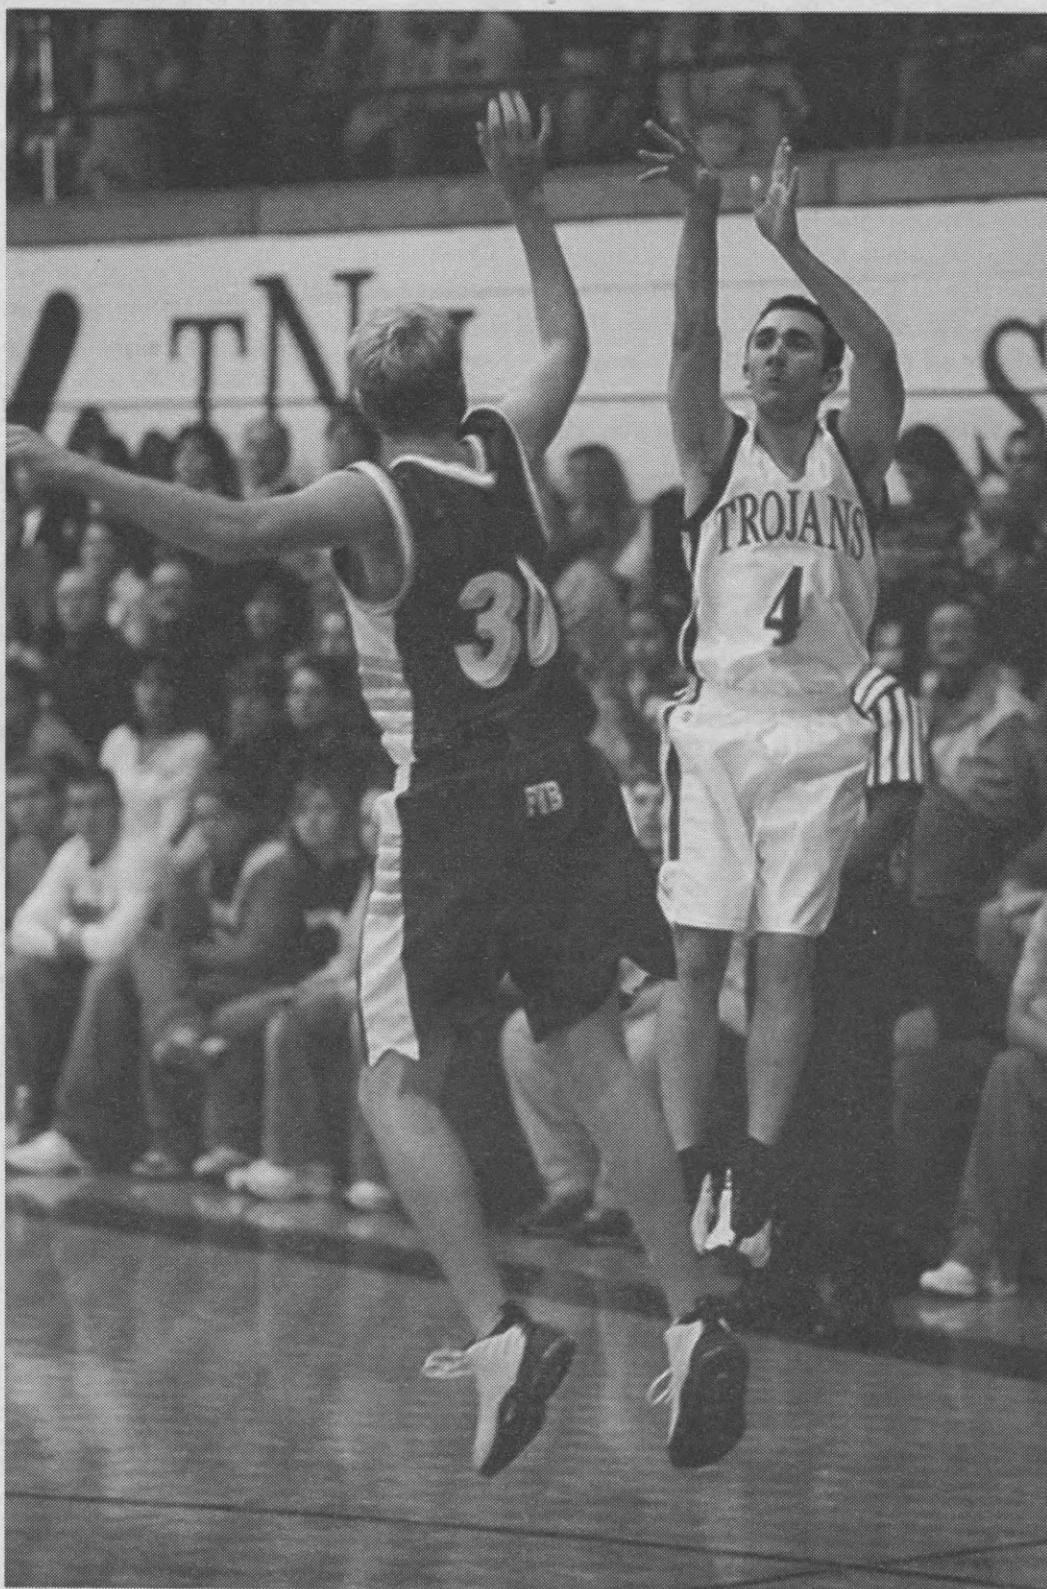

Immediately off the jumpball, the Trojans exploded into an offensive display unexpected by the RedHawks. The ball bounced around after being tipped out on the jumpball before Trojan senior Will Partin finally grabbed the loose ball and started a chain of events that dominated Martin Methodist.

Two minutes later, Martin Methodist Head Coach Chuck Benson calls a desperation timeout, his team losing 10-0 and the home crowd sitting in stunned silence. The Trojans weren't finished yet.

Led by 6'9" junior forward Marko Kandic who tallied 19 points and 5 rebounds, the Trevecca men's basketball team went on to shock the #6 team in the NAIA with a 69-57 win.

Senior Darryl Keckler added 16 points and 9 rebounds of his own in the winning effort while senior Jared Austin, coming off an injury that has sidelined him for almost three entire games, scored 11 points shooting a perfect 5 for 5 from the field.

The Trojans improve to 10-5 on the season and 1-0 in TranSouth Conference play. Trevecca will next travel to Jackson, TN to take on #30 Union University on Thursday, Jan. 23 at 8pm.

Senior point guard Will Partin drills a three-pointer over the head of a would-be defender.

Fall sports final recap

...continued from page 6
character and leadership.

The men's soccer team finished the 2002 fall season at 8-7-3 under Head Coach Stan Herod and Asst. Coach Tim Betts. Under the leadership of captains Johnathan Strickland and Matt Hurst, the men faced their greatest obstacle: team chemistry.

With eight international players on the roster of twenty-six, the men had to learn not only how to interact and communicate with one another on the field, but to build a "team" off the field.

The results of this growth were shown in their success. The men tied 0-0 against #12 ranked Berry College and a win, 1-0 over rival Union University.

During the season Vinnie Bhaskar, a junior from Brisbane, Australia, was named Region XI player of the week and TranSouth Conference player of the week. Goal keepers Joe Shurm and Aaron Reynolds gave up only 16 goals in 2002 and compiled eight shutouts. The team 2002 MVP went to Mariano Monzu and captains, Strickland and Hurst both tied as Most Inspirational player. Junior Esteban Gonzales received the Coach's Award for character and perseverance.

As TNU athletics fall into spring, many exciting and new developments are underway. Stay tuned to the Trevechoes for more information on all sports.

TNU Sports Calendar

Feb. 13- Thursday
Women's Basketball
@ Cumberland University 6 PM
Men's Basketball
@ Cumberland University 8 PM

Feb. 20- Thursday
Women's Basketball
@ Freed-Hardeman 6PM
Men's Basketball
@ Freed-Hardeman 8pm

Feb. 21- Friday
Softball
vs. Mountain State 2 PM

Feb. 22- Saturday
Women's Basketball
vs. Martin Methodist College 2 PM
Men's Basketball
vs. Martin Methodist College 4 PM

Feb. 24- Monday
Softball
@ Campbellsville University 1 PM
Women's Basketball
vs. Cumberland University 6 PM

Feb. 27- Thursday
Women's Basketball
vs. Lee University 6 PM
Men's Basketball
vs. Lee University 8 PM

Feb. 28- Friday
Softball
vs. Lindsey Wilson College 2 PM

The Back Page

Volume 56 Issue 6

Treveloes

January 23, 2003

Once upon an iceberg...

by Billy Byler

There comes a time in every man's life when, after an overall rotten day filled with monotonous professors, condescending bosses, and the everyday stresses of life, that only one thing can soothe his spirit, calm his nerves, and ease his mind.

Such was the case not too long ago with my roommate who, for purposes of anonymity, will be referred to as Rhett Butlerheimer.

My roommate, Rhett Butlerheimer, after a rough day such as the one stated above, desired that one simple thing to give him rest and relaxation. He turned to me for the solution.

"Billy," said Rhett Butlerheimer as I sat in our room reading, "tell me a bedtime story."

Being the open, honest, typical male college student that I am, I proceeded to put down my book, tuck Rhett Butlerheimer into bed, then call everyone of his friends, laughing hysterically, telling them what a wimp he was for wanting to hear a bedtime story like a big baby.

When most of my wounds and cuts had stopped bleeding, Rhett climbed back into bed, still rubbing his recently used fists, and I proceeded to tell him a bedtime story.

"Once upon a time," I said, attempting to buy time to actually come up with something even resembling a plot.

"No good," said Rhett, "try something creative."

I took a deep breath, rebandaged my wounds, and began...

"Once upon an iceberg there lived a penguin. She was a pretty good penguin, as far as penguin behavior is concerned. She always did her penguin cleaning assignments, went to penguin church, rarely violated her penguin curfew, and emptied her penguin trash can when needed. All the other penguins on her iceberg liked her, and, for the most part, she liked them too.

Perhaps the most important thing in this penguin's life was her penguin igloo. It was truly a beautiful sight. Located on the everso popular Johnson Iceberg, the igloo's cubes of ice, perfectly shaped, formed the outside of the arctic structure while the inside was beautifully arranged with furniture that was securely bolted to the floor. Her ig-housing schemes. Soon, her igloo was the most simple and plain looking igloo on the entire iceberg. Although her igloo still gave her all the room and comfort she needed, the little penguin quickly grew jealous of the big polar bear igloos.

One day, a traveling firewood, earmuff, and refrigerator salesman made his way onto Johnson Iceberg. He entered the iceberg on Sunday night from 8 PM to 11 PM and left his ID in the iceberg lobby so it was thing.

Looking at the products, the little penguin decided that, being on an iceberg, she didn't have much use for a refrigerator. However, when she saw the firewood, earmuff, and refrigerator salesman, an idea immediately came to her.

Quickly, the little penguin bought up all the firewood her little penguin wings could carry and ran back toward her igloo, calling back to the firewood, earmuff, and refrigerator salesman, "Thank you so much! I would stay and buy some earmuffs from you, but as far as the narrator can tell, penguins don't have ears. So he doesn't think I would have much use for them." And with that she bounded quickly toward her igloo.

Once safely inside, she began to reveal her master plan.

"I'll show those transfer polar bears who has the best igloo! I'll build a fireplace! That way, no matter how cool and big their igloos are, my igloo will be nice and warm, and everyone will envy me!"

Immediately the little penguin built a roaring fire and soon was basking in the warmth around her.

Unfortunately, her heated haven was short-lived as the heat from the fire began to melt the igloo! A small hole formed at the top of the igloo and the entire structure was fading fast!

"Oh no!" thought the little penguin, "What will I do?"

With no way of escaping, she quickly hid in a corner. Suddenly, she realized, igloos don't have corners! So she ran screaming and crying from her half melted house.

Moments later, the last drop of igloo melted away and dropped on top of the firewood, extinguishing the flame.

"What am I to do?" the little penguin cried, "I've lost everything!"

Just then, the strikingly handsome and somewhat corny firewood, earmuff, and refrigerator salesman came walking up. Upon seeing the devastation before him, the salesman had pity on the arctic ave and made her an offer.

"Well, little penguin," he said with wisdom beyond his years, "looks like you've gotten yourself into a mess. You had everything you needed, and yet you lost it all when you became too greedy for your own good."

"However, I have just the thing. There happens to be a place where you can stay that's not too far away from your iceberg."

"Where is it?" asked the little penguin.

"It's actually, just a little ways down," explained the salesman, "on a place called Redford Glacier."

"Redford Glacier?" exclaimed the little penguin, but that's not an iceberg!"

"No it isn't," said the salesman, "it's much bigger than an iceberg, and it has a little penguin kitchen where you can use the oven to warm up, and you won't have to worry about melting your igloo because it's made of a combination of brick and concrete that, although it's as ugly as a retarded baboon, won't melt at all! In fact, you can stay there as long as you want."

"Forever?" asked the little penguin with Tim Green-like innocence.

"Yes, forever," answered the salesman, "Just remember, that'll be $5,000 per year plus a meal plan."

And they lived happily ever after.

With that, Rhett Butlerheimer looked over at me, and with a groggy smile on his face said, "Byler, I'll never ask you to tell me a bedtime story as long as I live."

With wide eyed innocence I looked up and asked, "Forever?"

"Forever," he said, and went to sleep.

"Billy," said Rhett Butlerheimer as I sat in our room reading, "tell me a bedtime story."

loo was connected with an adjoining igloo that shared a little penguin potty and penguin shower though that igloo was not as nicely decorated as the little penguin's.

Overall, this little penguin loved her igloo and held quite a bit of pride in her dwelling. She loved her igloo, that is, until the polar bears moved onto the iceberg.

The polar bears, though seemingly nice mammals, had transferred in from a larger neighboring glacier that was state funded and had better facilities.

The polar bears, despite only being able to slowly grunt and drink Coke, began to design their igloos in bigger and better ways than the little penguin's. One wild and crazy polar bear duo even went as far as mounting a TV to the inside of their igloo wall even though local building codes clearly stated that only sticky tack and other non corrosive substances were to be used on the igloo walls.

The little penguin was appalled at such outlandish

OK.

This particular firewood, earmuff, and refrigerator salesman was strikingly handsome despite an unseemly black eye and his inclination to tell corny jokes. In addition, like most any firewood, earmuff, and refrigerator salesman, he was very successful and had all the girls in high school known how successful he had become, they would probably hate themselves for calling him names, giving him wedgies, and laughing in his face every time he asked them to go to a school function with him.

As the strikingly handsome and somewhat corny firewood, earmuff, and refrigerator salesman made his way down the iceberg, he came upon the little penguin.

He displayed his products for her but the penguin, still bitter about the whole polar bears with better igloos incident, didn't pay much attention. Despite her lack of attentiveness, the little penguin, not wanting to hurt the salesman's feelings, decided to buy some-